Gymnastics not tailored for specific body or age group

A visiting gymnastics trainer believes there's potential for the sport to take root in the territory.

Oceania Gymnastics Development Manager, Brooke Kneebush is conducting skills training for those who want to flex their limbs and contort their bodies and also train potential coaches who will help promote gymnastics in American Samoa.

It was during a sports meeting in Fiji that the Sports Commissioner for the Department of Youth and Women's Affairs, Ethan Lake invited Brooke Kneebush to help introduce the sport to the territory.

Kneebush says gymnastics is not just about artistry or tailored for a specific body type nor for a certain age.

Kneebush arrived Sunday and in two days since she started the clinic she's been impressed with the participants.

If you're interested in enrolling your children or becoming a gymnastics coach, go to the Youth Gym in Pago Pago and sign up for coaching sessions.
